Reflection

From my first draft of the research paper I gained a lot more knowledge than I would have thought. To begin with, I had the most trouble in citations and how to put it in MLA format. This has been a major issue that I have dealt with since writing my exploratory essay. I feel like I have improved on this matter tremendously. To add on, my understanding between past and present tense is a lot more clearer to me. In addition, everything that states a fact or information about my author should be cited. But, the problems that I am still dealing with is proofreading and placing commas at the right place. Overall, I felt like my skills and abilities as a writer increased gradually and I am really proud of my improvements.
